

Mason Seeking '32 Minutes'

Charlie Mason is starting to hate halftimes. Of late, Mason's Mulvane boys basketballers have been suffering from the third quarter blues and that old malady has greased the skids for three consecutive defeats in 1982.

The latest was Thursday night, Jan. 14, at Goddard. After playing the ranked Lions off their feet in the first half, Goddard came out in the third quarter, exploited a Mulvane weakness and sprinted away to a 65-51 Chisholm Trail League triumph at Goddard.

"Sometimes you hate to have half-time," lamented Mason. "This was one of those times. We talked about playing 32 good minutes of basketball but we came out with only about 28 minutes. It wasn't so much of a mental lapse or letdown, but it was a matter of offensive adjustment by them. We were in our 3-2 zone and they over-loaded with a 6-foot-4, 6-5 and 6-7 and it hurt us. They shot the ball over the top because we had 6-footers guarding them.

"Against a team as good as Goddard, you can look up one minute and be right in the ball game and look up there a minute later and you're out of it."

Warren finished with 20 points, the only other MHS player in twin figures was senior guard Dale Landes with 12. Vic Marcelle, Hagerman, Joey Belden and Butler all scored four points, for Butler they were his first varsity points.

The Mulvane junior varsity had even tougher sailing as the Lions routed the visiting Cats, 83-46. For Mulvane, Robert Turner, a junior, scored 10 points and Butler and Allen Whitmer had 14 and 15, respectively.

Goddard made it a clean sweep for the evening by trouncing the Wildcat sophomore team, 47-21. Pat McElravy scored 12 points and Terry Reusser seven for the Cats.
