As Rockets, Valley Check 1-3 Cats

Somehow winning every battle didn't lead up to winning the war. Mulvane led much of the game only to slide behind Rose Hill in a non-league boys basketball game Tuesday night, Dec. 14, before losing by a 50-47 count.

The loss dropped the Wildcats to 1-3 for the season with only Wellington Friday night to make up ground before the holiday break.

"We won everything except the score," confessed Cat Coach Charlie Mason. "The key factor was that we didn't have somebody take charge in there like (Chris) Holland did for them down the stretch. The difference in the ball game was when we fouled their point guard with eight seconds to go and he missed the free throw but we failed to block him out and he got his own rebound."

That snafu sent the Rockets' Mike Bradfield to the line again and he made both tosses to put the game on ice.

"It was a very disappointing game," said Mason. "I don't want to sound like a broken record but having young people in there has its effects. We're making those nagging little mistakes that younger kids will make."

The lone bright spot for the Cats was the play of 6-foot-4 junior Todd Travis, who scored a career-high 20 points. Junior guard Kevin Bell added eight points. Travis also led the Cats to a 35-21 rebound edge with 10 caroms, the same number 6-6 David Hagerman rounded up.

The Mulvane junior varsity lost a scoring contest to the Rockets, 74-63.

The Cats had Rose Hill down, 47-42, heading into the final frame but Rose Hill rang up 32 points.

Sophomore guard David Belew scored 15 points and junior Terry Reusser added 14 for the Wildcats.

Valley Center buried Mason's squad under a second-half spurt, out-scoring the Cats, 41-21, to race past the Wildcats, 61-48, in a Chisholm Trail League game here Friday, Dec. 10.

The Cats, playing a steady game, carried a 27-20 lead into the dressing room at halftime but the undefeated Hornets quickly moved to the forefront behind a pressing defense which forced several turnovers. Valley also started hitting the basket, too, making 58 percent of their second-half shots after making only 30% in the first half.

Bell again led the Cats on offense, hitting for 14 points. Hagerman scored seven points but was upstaged by sophomore Lonny Travis and Robert Turner with eight points each.

The Mulvane junior varsity also had a rough night of it, bowing, 56-41. A lousy second quarter which saw the Hornets out-score Mulvane, 15-3, keyed the results.
