

Cat Gals 'Stall Out' Vs. Lions

A delay game only works when those easy shots worked for are made. "When you miss them, it's all over," stressed Mulvane girls basketball coach Bill Brown.

It took Goddard one quarter to get its game together against a stalling Mulvane club but even in the early going, it quickly became apparent that the Wildcats were in trouble in a game eventually won by the Lions, 49-17, Friday night, Feb. 6.

"We ran a beautiful delay game in the first quarter," remarked Brown. "They only shot three times and we shot four times but they made theirs and we missed. That marked the beginning of the end because you have to hit those little two-footers or you're dead."

Those early misses enabled Goddard to grab the tempo of the game and take a 6-0 lead after one period and a 21-3 advantage at intermission.

"The second quarter, they came out and put a little more pressure on us and got some turnovers and it was apparent we couldn't stay in the delay," added Brown. "We came out and tried to shoot with them but we couldn't. I guess if we would have tried that from the start, it would have been another 75-25 ball game."

As it was, the loss dropped the Wildcat gals to 2-13 heading into tonight's (Feb. 12) game at Valley Center.

"It's hard for the girls to switch from a slowdown to a speed-up game, in fact it's nearly impossible," said Brown. "You get your rhythm going and you're all geared up to hold the ball and suddenly, you're supposed to shoot it."

Mulvane's gals held their own on the boards, where they carved out a 28-23 advantage. Arlene Reekie and Vicki Powell, two seniors, gathered in 12 and 6 caroms, respectively.

Reekie also continued to hold her own in the scoring department as she paced the Wildcat offense against the Lions, scoring nine points. Junior guard April Bales was next with four points.

The Mulvane junior varsity enjoyed one of its better offensive games for coach Kim Frank but Goddard had more and roared to a 48-30 victory.

Sophomore Mary Cole posted one of her best games as she rolled in 14 points. Nancy Gehring and Celia Rogers each scored six points for the Wildcats.
